THE COMING RECIPROCITY CONVENTION AT CHICAGO.

Speaking of the forthcoming reciprocity convention which has been called for some time this month at Chicago, the Boston Advertiser had an editorial yesterday which was worth reading, for it showed how far from being a unit are these reciprocity shouters from various parts of the country and how under the cloak of the all too far stretched word "reciprocity" they are trying to make good their own private and sectional ends and aims, in short, that each separate section which is doing the shouting for reciprocity is looking for its own self-aggrandizement at the expense of some other.

Even the staid Advertiser, in its editorial, practically says from the Massachusetts point of view that every man who goes to the convention from Massachusetts, ought to be committed in some way to free hides and pledged to work for that issue above every other. It is all right to talk about free hides in this general convention which is to come, but we here in Gloucester know that as soon as the matter of reciprocity with Canada is broached, or perhaps more particularly Newfoundland reciprocity at this time, for Canadian reciprocity is out of the question at present because Canada does not want it, the New England end, under the lead of a few coal importers and big local manufacturers of certain wares will get right up as usual and say, "Don't bother about free hides on Newfoundland's account. Give her free entry of salt fish and that will be all she wants or will ask."

It's all right to tell about free hides, but we here in Gloucester know pretty near what is in the minds of certain reciprocity leaders in the vicinity of Boston, as far as Newfoundland is concerned, and they would sacrifice Gloucester and the New England fishing industry to gain their own ends as quick as they would wink their eye. However, they have not done it yet and now, in spite of their howls that we could not get along without Newfoundland's bait for our vessels, the record of this season is proving so far to the contrary that they have not a leg left to stand on as far as this point is concerned.

They would like to have us think that all the New England manufacturers are howling for this reciprocity or for tariff revision, but the Springfield Republican publishes a list showing how manufacturers in the western part of the state look upon tariff revision. The list shows that 16 say, "Let the tariff alone," while nine say, "Tariff changes are desirable." This does not look as if there was much of a concerted action, even in Massachusetts for reciprocity or tariff revision, for they both amount to practically the same thing.

Below we give a few extracts from the Advertiser editorial which may be of interest:

"It may be said very positively that the attitude of the convention on reciprocity in general, as a broad public proposition, is equal to the hopes of the reciprocity men in Massachusetts. On the specific things that Massachusetts men regard as typical of reciprocity, the convention is likely to prove disappointing. But in big public bodies like the proposed conference of this month at Chicago, it often turns out that not all the hopes of those who attend are gratified. If the Massachusetts men should be disappointed at the attitude of the western cattlemen, the latter are quite as likely to be pained by the demands of the New England delegations.

"For instance. If there is one thing which the reciprocity leaders of this section talk about it is free hides. Perhaps no really interesting meeting of reciprocity advocates has been held in the last year in Massachusetts or elsewhere in New England, with out a good deal of emphasis being put on the issue of free hides. Any man who wants to see hides made free and the tariff reduction made the basis of concessions to American goods is classed as a good reciprocity man. And no man who opposes free hides has any standing in this state as a reciprocity advocate. So it is a matter of a good deal of importance that, so far as their tendencies can be learned in advance of the convention, a majority of the associations which have called been into the conference are against free hides. Among the bodies which are most strongly opposed, according to the statements of members or by correspondents in Chicago, are the National Live Stock Association, the National Live Stock Exchange, the American Stock Growers' Association, and the Meat Producers' Association.

"From the Massachusetts point of view, if this reciprocity question is to be settled at all, it must be settled right, from the start. It will do no particular good if the Massachusetts men who go to the convention keep mum on the subject of free hides and talk only tinselly generalities. The western men who want reciprocity ought to understand just as plainly as English can put it, that by "reciprocity" this state and the other New England states understand free hides first and above everything else. If the western men cannot agree to this, there is not much use in talking of a sham reciprocity, that New England cannot support. Every man who goes to the Chicago conference ought to be committed in some way to free hides and pledged to work for that issue above every other. If not, any resolutions which the cattlemen may pass, dodging the issue, will mean little that is hopeful to the greatest industry of this section. Even the "stand pat" element in this section admits that the demand for free hides has a good basis, and that New England would be more prosperous if the westerners would only agree to allow that change in the tariff to be made."

THE HERRING QUESTION.

Now Being Considered by the Newfoundland Government.

Gloucester Vessel Owners Will Not Talk on the Matter.

The following dispatch from St. John's, N. F., will be read here with considerable interest:

"The government of Newfoundland is now considering the enforcement of the herring fishery laws against American fishermen on the west coast during the autumn and winter. Two alternative policies are suggested, one being to refuse to permit the purchase of herring from the colonial fisherfolk and the other to levy an export duty on all such herring conveyed to American markets, with special penalties if the fish are landed in Canadian ports or at St. Pierre."

All attempts to secure an expression of opinion here from the large firms most interested in the prosecution of the salt and frozen herring industry were, in a great measure, futile, for the gentlemen seen remarked that they saw no reason at this time why they should make any statement or give any opinion as to any act or contemplated act of the Newfoundland authorities. Their case, since the manifesto of Premier Bond last spring, had been placed in the hands of a competent committee, which had stated its case to the President and department authorities at Washington, and they did not feel that at this time it would be proper to give any interviews on the subject.

The firm of Lane & Smith bought today the fares of salt Georges codfish of schs. A. T. Gifford and Matthew Keany at $4.87 1-2 per hundred weight for large and $4. for medium. This is quite a bit over the card price, and is the highest quotation of salt handline Georges cod for a long time.

THE DOGFISH PESTS.

The recent investigation by Representative Edwin C. McIntire of this city in the interests of the fish and game commission to ascertain relative to the destructive qualities of the dogfish so far as they effected foodfish and fishing gear, revealed a condition of things, which present the alarming state of affairs which prevails, and demonstrated that thousands of dollars worth of food fish and fishing gear were destroyed each year by those voracious fish. Taking the case cited as an example, the net receipts of the trip by the men engaged, after allowing for the damage to the trawls and the food fish, was something like $167, and out of this they must allow for the wear and tear on the fishing gear, the cost of maintaining their boat and some other incidental expenses which are indispensable, and it can readily be seen that the ravages of these dogfish, when figured in the proper way, is serious, and cause an immense amount of loss.

These figures were taken at random, the result of a regular fishing trip along the regular grounds and cannot be said to have been doctored in any way. Prof. Field of the fish and game commission, who is in charge of this work, was well pleased with the data he received, and will soon come here and witness another test. It is quite evident that something should be done to prevent this great annual leakage in the fishing receipts, and if the national government offers a bounty for the capture of dogfish, it is believed that such a course will prove beneficial and offer some relief. Of course it is quite impossible to expect that the dogfish can be completely exterminated, but their numbers may be lessened by the operation of a bounty so that the loss from their depredations will be minimized. The advocates of the bounty will have ample material with which to back their claims when they go before the congressional committee which will hear their grievance and what they expect in the way of a remedy.

WHERE DO MACKEREL GO?

Fish Commission Experts Will Try To Ascertain.

United States Sch. Grampus Fitting for Cruise.

In response to the request made by Messrs. William H. Jordan and Benj. A. Smith, a committee representing the Board of Trade, to the president, and Commissioner Bowers, head of the United States Fish Commission, the United States Fish Commission sch. Grampus, Capt. Hanson, is now at this port fitting for a mackerel investigation cruise, and will probably sail Friday or Saturday. The expedition will be in charge of Mr. A. B. Alexander, formerly of this city, now assistant in charge of the division of statistics of the fish commission at Washington, and Mr. I. H. Dunlap, chief clerk of the commission. The investigation will be made with much care and attention, and as Mr. Alexander is himself a practical fisherman, will no doubt be productive of good results.

TINKERS OFF HERE.

Seiners Reported Them Schooling Freely Yesterday Afternoon.

Sch. Diana Has Fine Fare of Large Salt Mackerel.

Several of the seining fleet are at this port this morning. All of them come from Georges and sch. Kentucky has also had a look down Yarmouth way and the Bay of Fundy and the Maine coast. The weather was poor and she saw no fish down that way.

Sch. Diana, Capt. James McLean, arrived from Georges with a fine fare, 226 barrels of salt mackerel, 212 barrels of which were taken in two schools on the famous gasoliner day, a week ago Saturday.

Sch. Slade Gorton is in port for a new jib and sch. Mary F. Curtis for a new seine.

Capt. Albert Larkin of sch. Natalie J. Nelson reports that they have seen considerable fish on Georges, but that they have of late been hard to catch and the weather the past few days has been poor. Capt. Larkin also reports that there were lots of schools of tinkers about seven miles off Eastern Point yesterday afternoon and that sch. Kentucky made a set and stopped a few.

Sch. Tattler is fitting for mackerel seining under command of Capt. Alden Geel.

The fare of sch. Mattakesett sold yesterday to Fred Bradley at $14.25 per barrel.

Capt. Elroy Prior of sch. Kentucky, in speaking about the reports of tinkers off here, said that yesterday there seemed to be small pods of these fish from the Isles of Shoals up to Thacher's island. There was no body to the schools, but spread out on top of the water as they were, they made quite a showing. He made a set at a school off Thacher's island and took three barrels, the fish counting 450 to the barrel, which are certainly good-sized tinkers.

TESTS WERE SATISFACTORY.

Prof. Field Pleased with Mr. McIntire's Work on Dogfish.

Prof. George W. Field, chairman of the Massachusetts fish and game commission, has written to Representative Edwin C. McIntire of this city, congratulating him upon the tests which were conducted under his direction, to ascertain the damage which dogfish do to food fish and fishing gear.

Prof. Field in his letter says the tests were very satisfactory and were just what were needed, and the commission only desire to be satisfied that the material is absolutely trustworthy.

The commission desire further information as to the general conditions. Prof. Field says he is coming here again soon and hopes to witness some of the tests.

LOTS OF MACKEREL.

Reported by Fishermen from Isles of Shoals to Halibut Point.

Many of the fishermen who arrived at Rockport yesterday report that the waters from the Isles of Shoals to Halibut Point were alive with mackerel yesterday. The fish seen were large and in great schools. The fishermen were very positive in their statement and some of them are putting on their mackerel nets and are going out on netting trips.

Sch. A. M. Nicholson, Capt. Albert Huddar, is at Boston this morning from Georges with a fine fare of 11,000 fresh mackerel in count, which are selling at 15 1-4 cents each.

PLENTY OF SWORDFISH.

Vessels Still Continue To Bring Trips Into Boston.

There are several swordfish arrivals at Boston today, over 400 of these monster fish being landed, the largest fares being sch. Sylvia M. Nunan 109, sch. James S. Steele 107, and sch. Pythian 104. The fish are selling at 4 1-4 cents per pound.

Monster Fare.

Sch. Maude P. Silva arrived at Boston today with a fare of 110,000 lbs. fresh fish and 42 swordfish. The craft sold her codfish and swordfish at Boston, but the remainder of the trip, which are mostly haddock, will be brought here to split.

Aug. 4.

SQUID VERY PLENTY.

Sch. Georgie Campbell Brings Welcome Report.

Found Squid in Abundance on the Grand Bank.

Plenty of squid on the Grand Bank is the cheering news which Capt. Albert Hubbard of sch. Georgie Campbell, engaged in salt banking, reported upon his arrival in port this morning, and to prove his assertion he had below deck in addition to his fare of salt cod, 7000 squid all salted down for use on his next trip. The squid were taken on the southwest part of the Grand Bank, and the captain reports that they were very plenty. They only had a very few squid jigs on board the vessel, but they had no difficulty in catching the above large amount in a very short space of time.

Reports have reached here via Lunenburg that there were some squid or signs of squid on the Grand Bank, but this report of Capt. Hubbard shows without a doubt that squid have struck in solid on the Grand Bank.

In spite of this, Capt. Hubbard reports, as do the Lunenburg bankers, that codfish are scarce on the bank.

Besides the large amount of squid which Capt. Hubbard saw and caught, he reports speaking several of the French fishing fleet and they all reported squid plenty and that they were getting all they wanted.

This news of squid on the Grand Bank is indeed welcome to Gloucester as it gives the fleet plenty of chance to get their bait right on the fishing ground and makes Sir Robert Bond's bait act look smaller in importance than ever.

Fresh codfish from all other grounds was made $2 for large and $1.62 1-2 for medium, all other haddock 90 cents and all fresh hake 80 cents.

CAPT. HARTY FOUND THEM.

Landed Fine Mackerel Fare at Boston Today.

Fish Were Taken 60 Miles Off Highland Light.

Up to noon today the only fresh mackerel arrival at Boston was sch. Mary E. Harty, Capt. Charles H. Harty, which brought into T wharf a fine fare of 18,900 large fresh mackerel.

This is Capt. Harty's second trip since taking command of his craft this season, having landed a fine fare at Boston a week ago last Sunday. The fish were taken about 60 miles southeast of Highland Light, about where the craft sch. Constellation and others recently secured fine trips.

Capt. Harty sold his fish at 16 cents each, which means that a fine share will be netted for the owners and crew.

Vessels from the Maine coast and the Isles of Shoals report large rafts of mackerel schooling the past week, and the prospects for a good catch are very encouraging.

QUITE AN ADVANCE.

Georges Salt Mackerel Go to $15 25 Per Barrel.

The fare of salt mackerel of sch. Diana sold to the Gloucester Mackerel Company at $15.25 per barrel.

The fare of sch. Kentucky sold to Stanwood & Co. at $15.50 per barrel.

A True Fish Story.

A Cannoon speared a 17-pound flounder in outer Newport harbor, yesterday. The flounder had been annoying a diver from the torpedo station, and a number of seamen gunners were sent out for diving practice. Cannoon was selected to go down under water. He had not been down long when the flounder appeared. Cannoon plunged his spear through the fish and the latter was soon landed on the deck of the launch.
